David Clark

David is a multi-talented 'people person' with a passion for empowering business leaders for transformation.

A legal background and an extensive career as a successful financial planner have enabled David to amass an enviable resume of management and leadership experience. His involvement at the board level of various entities, including a national funds management company from inception to national expansion, has provided David with an insight into how people and companies transform and achieve their full potential.

David is very passionate and motivated about mentoring, profiling and empowering people with personal insights to do more with their strengths and potential. He just loves helping people discover their talents and empowering them to develop and reach their own optimum level of personal performance.

David is an excellent orator and communicator with a unique talent for teaching and learning. His keen sense of humor is a welcomed ice-breaker and endears him to people instantly. Never without his signature smile and shine, David is a serious performer who can help people get into teams to focus, synergize and achieve together.

David lives in Launceston, Tasmania with his wife Janene and their two children. David is a keen sports fan who enjoys all sports. He and his family will be found at the beach at every opportunity.
